Leagues, tournaments and americano drafts for padel clubs

WHAT IT DOES

Everything you need to keep a league running

The boring work — pairings, match days, points, standings — is done by the software. What stays with the club are the decisions: who plays, when, and in which division.

Schedules in one tap

Round robin with the circle method, balanced groups with seeds, knockout bracket with the first/second crossover. Odd number of pairs? It assigns the bye by itself.

Live updates

You save a result from the side of the court and whoever is looking at the table sees it change, without reloading. No more "can you send me a photo of the draw sheet?".

Print and PDF

Schedule and standings come out laid out for the noticeboard, or as a PDF to send to the group, with one button. Because the noticeboard is still a thing.

Standings that build themselves

You type the set scores: points, sets and games are worked out and the table reorders itself. Fixing a wrong result undoes the old points before applying the new ones.

The club diary

Who is on court now, who plays next, what is left to schedule: every competition on a single page, with the time and the court of each match. The tournament-day question, already answered.

Every club sees its own

Only the club can change the club's data. The limit isn't in the interface: it's the server that refuses any change that doesn't come from the owner.

STANDINGS · CLUB LEAGUE 2026

1	Hughes / Carter	18 pts
2	Bennett / Shaw	15 pts
3	Doyle / Frost	13 pts
4	Marsh / Ellis	9 pts
5	Quinn / Reid	7 pts

It reorders itself with every result saved

SCHEDULE · MATCH DAY 4

Who plays, with whom, on which court

Half the work is theirs, with nothing asked at the desk

Sign-ups collected out loud, results copied out in the evening, the draw sheet photographed and sent to the group: those are the three biggest time sinks, and they are also the ones members can handle themselves.

Sign-ups from a link

Open sign-ups and share the link on WhatsApp. Whoever opens it asks to join with their partner, you watch the requests arrive and approve with a tap. Nobody gets in without your yes.

Players enter the results

If you want, each pair enters the score of their own matches and the opponent confirms within 24 hours. You step in only when the two disagree. Or you stay the only one who writes: you decide when you create the competition.

The player profile

Matches, sets, games, competitions won: every member has their own card, with the history of what they have played at the club. The stars from court partners say how it went playing together.

The player ranking

Beside the pairs table there is one for people, built on the strength shown on court: beating a strong pair counts for more than beating the bottom one. Anyone who wants makes their profile public and appears in the ranking across clubs too.

The next match on the home screen

The iPhone and Android widget keeps the next match on the home screen: day, time, court and opponents, without opening anything. The shortest answer to "when do I play?".

App, or browser, as they prefer

The iPhone and Android apps are free and speak English, Spanish and Italian, following the phone's language. Anyone who would rather not install them uses the site, on a phone or a computer.

What the time is worth. A sixteen-pair tournament collected out loud and typed into a table takes an evening of work, plus the phone calls over the following days to tell everyone when they play. With sign-ups from a link and a generated schedule, the same competition opens in ten minutes, and the calls never happen because everyone checks their phone.

THE THREE FORMATS

The same ones your club already runs

There is no adapting the way you play to the software: PadelBattle knows the formats clubs actually use, each with its own scoring rules.

League

A single round robin, across several divisions too (Division A, Division B...). Every pair meets all the others, one match day at a time, with the table always up to date.

Points 3 / 2 / 1 / 0 · tie-break on sets

Tournament

Balanced groups with seeds, then the knockout stage: the top two of each group go through and the bracket is built with the first/second crossover. The next round is generated once the previous one is complete.

Round of 16, quarters, semis, final · tie-break on games

Americano draft

From 4 to 20 players: everyone pairs up once with each of the others and the ranking is individual. In the mixed version there are equal numbers of men and women, and every pair is always one of each.

Single scoring · no fixed pairs · mixed too

GETTING STARTED

1

Choose a plan and pay

As soon as the payment is confirmed you see the activation code on screen, and with it you choose the club's email and password.

3

Create the competition

Name, year, format. Add the pairs or share the sign-up link, press generate and the schedule is done.

Prices per club, net of VAT. You pay once: it isn't a subscription that renews itself – no stored card, no automatic charge, no cancellation to send. When the period ends nothing is lost: the club keeps seeing all its competitions, schedules and standings, and can edit them again as soon as another period is paid.

How you pay

By card, on the site. The activation code appears on screen as soon as the payment is confirmed: there is nothing to wait for and nobody to call.

You can change plan

At every renewal you pick a longer or a shorter period. Starting monthly and moving to yearly after a season is the most common choice.

Invoice and VAT

Sold by PYNLab S.r.l., an Italian company. EU businesses with a VAT number valid in VIES are invoiced without VAT under reverse charge; outside the EU no Italian VAT applies.

What we usually get asked

Do players have to pay anything?

No. The club pays, once, and members browse for free however many they are. They sign up with email and password and see the published competitions.

Can players sign themselves up?

Yes, if you want. Open sign-ups and share the link in the group chat: whoever opens it writes their partner's name and asks to join. The request comes to you, and you decide who to approve.

Which languages is it in?

The player apps are in English, Spanish and Italian, following the phone's language. The club's web dashboard is in Italian for now; the payment pages are in your language.

Can we try it before committing?

The monthly plan is the trial: twenty euros plus VAT, live in two minutes, and if it doesn't convince you it simply isn't renewed. No commitment and no cancellation to send.

What if the club secretary changes?

The account belongs to the club, not to the person. The previous contact is unlinked, a new code is generated and the successor creates their own credentials: the competitions are left untouched.

Your members' data stays yours. For the player names and the results, the controller is the club; PadelBattle is its processor under article 28 of the GDPR, with an agreement written into the terms of service. You can export everything at any time, in a readable file. We don't use that data for anything else, there is no advertising and there is no profiling.

Let's start with your next league

On padelbattle.it/en you choose the plan, pay by card and the activation code is already on screen: you generate the first schedule the same afternoon. If you'd rather do it together, a call is enough.
